DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1-6, and 13-19 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Koike et al. (U.S. Patent 6,310,672) in view of Akutsu et al. (U.S. Patent 6,224,735) and Matsumoto et al. (U.S. Patent 6,414,732).

Koike et al. teach panel, and the method for making the panel, with a first substrate including a black matrix defining openings, color filter layers disposed in said openings and a piece of material between the black matrix and color filter layers that is separated from a second substrate with electrodes for generating electric fields by a liquid crystal layer, but is silent regarding the resistivity of the color filter and the piece of material. Akutsu et al. provide one teaching of the common knowledge that color filters are typically of relatively high resistivity, e.g. 10^8 ohm-cm. Matsumoto et al. teach forming an overlying planarization layer (e.g. 14) with a resistivity of 10^{16} ohm-cm. See column 6, line 14. Matsumoto et al. also teach the well-known fact that the resin must have a resistivity higher than the color filter layers and a thickness sufficient to prevent leakage to the LCD layer. See column 4 line 50. Therefore it would have been obvious to one skilled in the art at the time of the invention to form an overcoat layer with a higher resistivity than the color filter layer or the black matrix.

Allowable Subject Matter

Claims 7-12 are objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims as indicated in the previous office action.

Response to Arguments

Applicant's arguments filed 7/7/2003 have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant argues that the prior art and official notice are insufficient to teach an overlying layer with a higher resistivity than the color filter layer. Matsumoto et al. have been cited to replace the official notice and provide the well-known teaching referred to in the previous rejection. The rejection is maintained as final as the Matsumoto et al. reference merely substantiates the official notice previously taken.

Conclusion

THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
